

Belmont Forum - Call on Climate Environment and Health

Questions and answers from the webinar 9 April 2019

| QUESTION | ANSWER |
|---|---|
| For the Swedish Prisma application: Can the main applicant and co-applicants come from the same university? | Yes, a co-applicant is just another researcher and not necessarily a researcher from another organisation. |
| Who nominates and decides the Leading PI? | It is up to the consortium behind the proposal to select a leading PI among the participating researchers. |
| In the Swedish Prisma application: Should only applicants from Sweden be registered? | Yes. The co-applicants for the proposal registered in Prisma should only be from the Swedish part of the consortium. |
| Organisationally we belong to faculty of engineering. But our research is in the area of climate, environment and health. I wonder if we are eligible to apply? | Yes, of course! |
| Is it recommended to include countries from different regions? | It depends on the research question of your proposal. If relevant, yes. This will be up to the Panel of Experts who evaluate the proposals to assess. We recommend including expertise that brings added value to the application. |
| Can the Leading Principal Investigator (LPI) be another person than the Partner PI from that country? | It is not against the rules, but in that case it is recommended that the added value of such an organisation is clearly described in the proposal, for the evaluators to understand. |
| To confirm, if we include partners from outside the funding partners, we can still transfer some of our funds to them, correct? | Yes, Swedish applicants can also include co-applicants from other countries that are participating in the call and if approved funds may be transferred to other countries. However, this needs to be relevant for the project and motivated in the budget. |
| How will the reviewers be selected? How many are they for each proposal? | Funding agencies will nominate reviewers to the Panel of Experts who evaluate the proposals. The exact number of reviewers for each application is not yet decided. |
| If there are researchers from two organisations from Sweden, how will the funding will be distributed? | There can only be one Swedish administrating organisation per proposal and it is up the researchers to decide which organisation shall be the lead. If approved, the administrating organisation, which is the organisation of the Swedish main applicant, will be responsible for distributing funding to the other Swedish participating organisations. |
